

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE!

CONTACT: Carrie Sass

SASS! Public Relations
(209) 957-7277

In an unpredictable world where families invest their hearts into the life they've built at home, safety has become more than a priority. Safety is a foundation for peace, joy, and connection. Security expert Kimberley Borgens, CEO of Delta Protective Services in Stockton, is available to speak as an authority about crime problems and professional security solutions improving safety without compromising comfort or beauty.

"As CEO of Delta Protective Services, alongside Lawrence Borgens, my husband, co-founder and president, we are at the forefront of community safety and security — turning fear into confidence and protection into partnership," Kimberley Borgens said. "As a business leader, entrepreneur, mentor and community builder, I bring the same passion to community safety as I do to empowering women in business."

Safety resonates with every resident and homeowner. Whether planning holidays with family, or a couple dreaming of an outdoor wedding, or enjoying summer evenings on their porch, safety creates peace of mind.

"Here are some expert tips inspired by my real-world experience," she said.

Her five important preventative safety recommendations for residents include:

1. Know your entry points: Doors, windows and gates are potential access points that should be reinforced with quality locks, motion-activated lighting and scheduled checks, especially at dusk and after social gatherings.
2. Layer your defenses: Combine visible measures, such as patrols or cameras, with less visible ones, such as alarm systems or smart sensors.
3. Get to know the neighbors: Community is the first line of defense. A neighborhood that communicates regularly can notice subtle changes such as unusual vehicles or unfamiliar faces.
4. Keep landscaping strategic: Gardens shouldn't be hiding places for intruders. Trim shrubs near entrances and maintain clear sightlines from the street and neighboring properties.
5. Plan for celebration safety: Whether it's wedding guests or a family birthday party, designate safe parking, mark emergency exits, and if there is any doubt, consider professional security support for large events.

Please reach out to schedule an interview if you are in need of a security specialist to offer professional insight and perspective on crime problems and security solutions regarding residential, commercial, agricultural properties and more.